“ To the entire family,
I am so very sorry for your loss. I truly loved your mom.
She was such an amazing person, so beautiful inside and out.
So strong, and the patience of a saint. No one should have to ever go through not only a Holocaust, but all her other losses. She was amazing, beautiful smart. I loved sitting in your house as a kid and talking with her, she always had time for me.
I'm sorry that I don't have the words to truly express, but just know that my heart is there for you.
Xoxo

“ I’m so really sorry to hear this Eva was a strong survivor of the holocaust no fought at all but a mother first she was proud of most I remember her so clear when I was young I went over the house because I was great friends with her late daughter Shirley whom definitely had her moms strength and will anyways I was always given kind words love and a feeling that no matter what today brought there’s always tomorrow when shirley was in the hospital the last years after going into a coma from the hospitals carelessness I would call all the time because I lived in California Eva would put the phone to Shirley’s ear so she could. listen hoping something might trigger her to wake up every time Eva would say keep on calling cause she hoped like us all that one day she will come out of it but years later with her mom always with Shirley she past away heartbreak forever for everyone that new Eva and Shirley I stayed in contact all the years until a few years ago when health issues made it to much for her. I always loved her and the family and so did my mom she looked to the future as hard as it was and would say one day I’ll see my Shirley again well Rest In Peace and I’m sure your together now you were one of the strongest loving beautiful and kindest women I had the privaledged people to get to be part of you and your family and Eva made such a difference in so many peoples lives exspecialally me when I lost my dad young and my friend her daughter Shirley you fly with the angels because you are and we’re a angel all my love to the family Joann Shapiro Duran

Aunt Eva was an exceptionally beautiful woman whose looks were just the tip of the iceberg. She had a very difficult life, starting with the Holocaust years, where she lost half of her large family, to her middle years when she lost her beloved daughter, Shirley, and husband Phillip in quick succession . Through these losses, she still maintained a strong will and zest for life, and continued to live it for 30 more years after the loss of her daughter, husband, and the remainder of her five siblings. She was able to keep going through the love, support, and caring of her two children, Jack and Rose, and Rose's husband Larry. The death of Aunt Eva marks the end of an incredible chapter in the lives of all the relatives that survive her. We had the unique pleasure of being a part of a large, close Holocaust survivors family. May they all rest in peace, and may their memories forever be a blessing.....

I like to think that all the brothers, sisters, spouses, and parents are together...Sitting at a large table, playing cards, drinking tea, and eating chocolate. Everyone except Bronka. She's leaning at a distance, having a smoke, and enjoying her whiskey. Thank you all for including my family in your gatherings. Because you did, I have many sweet memories. RIP, Eva.

RIP Eva I remember you from the time you were in Sweden. You arrived by help of the white busses who transported a great number of people from Germany. Raul Wallenberg did a lot for helping Jewish people out from the hell in Hitlers Germany. Your Husband Philip and of course your sun Jack. I have a photo from the day before you left for US and Detroit.

I just found out this news this morning. I went to school with Rose and we don't stay in touch unless we bump into each serendipitously. I was blessed to know Eva we met by chance 30+ years ago and there was an instant connection between us a comfort and calm as if we'd known each for a 100 hundred years. To me she was the face of g-d/ a kind /giving / sensitive soul who only had to look at you with her beautiful face, and those intense eyes and I could feel her vibration even without words. Eva was a lovely soul and messenger of all things good I truly loved her—one of a very few people whom had had a lifelong positive impact on me because the face of life itself brightened in her presence
