“ May he rest in peace. God alone knows how deeply painful it was that he never respected his dying son’s wishes—to accept the woman Dave loved and her three children, whom Dave loved dearly, and to allow them all to be one family. All Dave ever wanted was acceptance, love, and happiness. Even on Dave’s deathbed—on Christmas Day—I called him early that morning, begging him to come see his son as he was dying of cancer at just 32 years old. He said he was busy and did not arrive in Indiana until that evening, after Dave had already passed. I know Dave would want me to forgive him—for the hurt he caused Dave, his mother Corinne Singer, me, and Tony’s children. My heart aches for Dave every day, and it aches for Harvey’s passing as well, because he never made things right—never called to honor Dave’s wishes, never made amends, and never repaid the money owed to me and Dave’s mom while we struggled financially after being forced to travel to Michigan for months of treatment. I wish him peace, because that is what Dave would want. Still, I carry the anger and sadness that he died before ever making Dave’s wishes come true.
