“ I always loved seeing Henry volunteering at Fleischman. He was such a warm and smart man. His memory will be a blessing.

“ Henry holds a special place in our hearts at the Brown Adult Day Program at Jewish Senior Life. He began volunteering at the Brown Center in 2005 and always pitched in to help staff with activities, whether setting up games or playing cards. As a Holocaust survivor, Henry had a deep appreciation for the need that older adults have to share their stories about surviving adversity. He led many discussions with our participants about the hard times they had been through but also about their triumphs and life celebrations. Henry was a caring friend to those who needed someone to just to sit and listen when they were going through a difficult time. Just hearing that he would be coming to the Brown Center was enough to bring a smile to our participants. Understanding how we are all touched by the spirit of human creativity, Henry shared with the Brown Center his inspiring and beautiful metal sculptures that captured scenes and symbols of Jewish life. These works of art inspired all of us – staff, participants and visitors. May his memory be a blessing.

“ Henry was a mainstay at the Fleischman Residence during my tenure there as Religious Director. He was a gifted sculptor, producing a large collection of 3-dimensional replications of Jewish life. His attention to detail reflected his sense of perfection for his depictions.

He generously displayed these pieces of priceless art in the lobby of the Fleischman Residence, one at a time, for weeks on end.

Henry had much to say about the Holocaust, and no doubt is already sharing his testimony before the one Court of Justice which will utilize his information quite usefully in bringing the perpetrators properly to face the Laws of Crimes Against Humanity and the destruction of European Jewish Life. Y'hi Zichro Boruch!

May the Al-Mighty comfort Henry Friedman's family and friends amongst the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.
