“ After many years of working with Irv as his financial advisor, I can say that I know he loved his family very much. He always put their interests above his own. I never heard him complain about anything or anyone. He was always warm and agreeable. He will be missed greatly by all.

“ I was very saddened to learn of Bill's passing although he sure had a full and productive life. Bill was the most enthusiastic and energetic individual I have known. I worked with Bill on a number of national security programs in the 80's and 90's then from 1998 until his retirement from the Remote Sensing Laboratory (RSL) Las Vegas. In fact Bill was the guy who got me to RSL in the first place and we worked closely for many years with him as my Chief Scientist. Bill was a pre-eminent scientist and his many many contributions to national security in the broad areas of airborne remote sensing, physics, and radiologic instrumentation are immeasurable. He was a national level scientist well known across the defense and intelligence communities. I was honored to be able to work with him and we shared many adventures over the years. As his family know he was a true American patriot and the mentor to many many young and upcoming scientists. I was fortunate to have a short phone conversation with him a few months ago where got caught up on some folks and events and reminisced some about the "good old days",. I will miss you old friend - and thanks for everything. Alan Will, Director, National Nuclear Security Agency Remote Sensing Laboratory (Ret).

“ Bill, a truly amazing and wonderful human with a deep heart and a brilliant mind he shared with all. Wicked wonderful wit. I loved working with Bill, I treasured his friendship and guidance and stories. It's been too many years, though we've talked, I love seeing the photos and smiles. May Bill fly high and his family treasure his memory. 🕯️🕊️ Catherine Sloan Cunningham from Santa Fe NM formerly Las Vegas NV

I would need 1,000 pages to share all the wonderful memories I have of my dearest friend Irving. From the battles we fought in Farmington Public Schools and the community as "partners in crime", to the presentations he made on a host of subjects, to running for school board along with Murray. He did it all - and he did it better than anyone else. He was brilliant, charismatic, funny, soulful, dedicated, and so much more. The light of his life was his family -his daughters and his grandchildren, and his wife Sylvia (OBM). And When he spoke of them he glowed with pride. His memory will be and is a blessing to us all. We love you my dear friend and we miss you.

Irv was among the finest of gentleman that I ever knew. He was a tremendous role model and an incredible patriot. He loved his family, his faith and our great country. I already miss him. He is now resting in a good place, is at peace and he deserves all that. God bless you Mr. Irving, we love you.
