“ So sorry to hear this sad news! We met Jeff years ago when he moved to Oak Park. He would occasionally daven at Or Chadash, where my husband, Rabbi Eliezer Cohen, was rabbi. He seemed to know so much about so many different topics! He was friendly and upbeat, and willing to help out and advise if he could. His devotion to Benny was touching. We'd often see them together on Shabbos, and when Benny wasn't around, he would light up at mention of him. He was a good man.

“ I first met Jeff when he came to purchase a hat, I believe for his son's bar mitzvah. Since then, I have run into him many times in the Kollel and other shuls. Each time he had something cheerful to say along with a kibbitz. The community will sorely miss such a jovial, sincere and considerate person. May we all take a lesson from his easygoing nature and thereby perpetuate his memory.

“ I met Jeff many years ago when he was part of my extended family. He was always cheerful and concerned about other people. He seemed to be a devoted father to Benny. May his memory be a blessing.

“ Jeff was simply the nicest guy. When I first moved here, (before everyone had GPS) I would get lost on the roads and highways all the time. And he told me, “Just call me!” So I did. He guided me home through many a lost road. For years afterward, he would joke with me, “Hey, where are you and where do you need to go?” I never saw him complain, he always was positive and upbeat despite facing so many challenges in life. I’m going to miss you Jeff, but hopefully I’ll help someone else to their destination and pass on the kindness you so graciously shared with me! - Leiby Burnham
