“ Years ago, when Ms. Green was living in Michigan, she accidentally smashed into my brand new car - head on -which was parked in the street in front of my house. I ran out of the house and asked her if she was okay and she indicated she was, but, "wasn't paying attention". I told her it was "okay" as she obviously felt so bad. (I had just picked up the new car from the dealer.)

Later that night, Ms. Green came back to my house with a beautiful card apologizing for the accident. Inside the card was a wad of "folded" bills. I have no clue how much was in there, but I vehemently refused to take the money. However, I graciously accepted Ms. Green's card and gave her a big hug and told her that everything was fine as it was an accident. It was the most thoughtful thing anyone has ever done and I have never forgotten her for that gesture. Rest in peace sweet lady.
