I met Larry when he got home from Vietnam and began dating my then girlfriend's friend Linda. We spent a lot of time double-dating. He bought a 1963 Thunderbird convertible. I always thought he had the attitude that, if they couldn't kill him in 'Nam nothing could happen to him here which he demonstrated by facing the back seat and talking to us while driving a moving vehicle.

“ Uncle Larry was proud to have been the first male to attend home economics in his high school. He made amazing latkas and taught me how to make amazing devilled eggs. He was a great teacher and taught heating and cooling for many years at Baker College. He also helped me to rewire a burned out wire/outlet in my house many years ago. He walked me through it by just verbal instruction and we were able to do the repair. He was thoughtful and giving and would be there to help you in any way he could. When my parents opened their business he was there helping my mom wash down the deck and clean up the place. He will be dearly missed.
