I remember Leon well, he grew up upstairs from where we live there are five kids down and five kids upstairs and I know how much he loved the farm. Cousin Jeanette Bednarsh Weinbaum Weissman.

This was such a beautiful service. I'm sorry I wasn't able to attend in person, but it was truly an honor to care for Leon and have him in our home. I am continually amazed by the life he lived—the experiences he had, his love for helping others and animals. I will truly miss visiting with him, listening to his stories, and talking about sports. That was always one of the first things we had to catch up on—who won, who lost, and what games were coming up. He also never failed to update me on new books or articles he thought I'd find interesting. Leon will be deeply missed. May his memory be a blessing.

“ I feel privileged to have met Leon through his brother Leo, and to have shared a Passover meal with the brothers and Shana and RJ, Logan, Francisca at their house. I liked Leon and admired his spunk, and regret not visiting him at his farm, but appreciated hearing Deborah's stories about him and his animals and other aspects of his life.

“ I learned several facts from the memorial, including that he was in the armed services as a military policeman and that he completed a graduate degree. Also explained was how two of the sons ended up being named Leo and Leon -- apparently assigned by two different teachers unaware of the other.
