“Nathan was the epitome of a caring and supportive hospice professional. From the launching of the Jewish Hospice and Chaplaincy Network by Rabbi E. B. Freedman, Nathan was one of the original staff. He possessed a natural talent, ability, and empathy for reaching out to patients and their families. Very famously, Nathan invariably took flowers along when visiting lady patients. May his countless acts of kindness accompany his precious soul on its journey to the special place that awaits him in Heaven. May his family members be consoled by the Al-mighty amongst the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.

Nathan was what you would call a true mench in every sense of the word. When my husband Mark was dying in 2005 , Nathan constantly would come over and stay with him and keep him company while giving me a break. He was always there for my husband and me and this is a true loss to society. My heart breaks and goes out to his family for his loss. G-d received another angel.
