“ This is the photograph I took of Max and Pola when I had run into them in Washington DC. in 1983, as 15,000 Holocaust Survivors arrived to try to discover through a computer data base missing friends and family with whom were separated by the Nazi's.

“ My beautiful second mom. I loved you and will miss our phone conversations. You always told me that you loved me like a daughter. It meant so much since I lost my mom, your best friend. You made me feel so loved. You were the best. I know you are back with Max and my mom and that brings me comfort. I will miss you so much. Until we meet again.

“ I remember well the many Passovers in Toronto with the Wiener family and Max leading the Seder. Pola often talked about how she first met Max at the DP camp where they both spent time after the war. Max worked in the kitchen and served people as they lined up for food. Pola described how when it was her turn in line, Max would push the ladle deep into the pot to scoop out the most vegetables and tasty bits into her bowl. She always had a twinkle in her eye about how this signaled his interest in her and the start of their life together. May Pola's memory be a blessing.
